Krist Van Der Mark, Puype Van Der Slott : Dutch Muskets and Pistols before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Dutch Muskets and Pistols:

WoodmanThis book was written in 1943 by Joseph R. Mayer, MD, FRM. He was at that time Honorary Curator of the Division of Military History of the Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences in Rochester, NY. The 57 page book contains drawings of gun locks and parts found within 20 miles of Rochester in Iroquois gravesites and village sites destroyed by the French in 1687. These parts are identified(most are Dutch) and roughly dated. There is much information on how these guns got to this area through the fur trade with Europeans. It is very well researched, especially for the period it was written, and is of great interest to those with an interest in 17th century firearms in America. The subject has, however, been expanded a great deal in " Proceedings of the 1984 Trade Gun Conference; Part 1, Dutch and Other Flintlocks from 17th Century Iroquois Sites" by Jan Piet Puype. Puype had access to many more gun parts than Mayer did, and his identification and dating is more precise due to the research done in the 40 years that separate these two books. I highly recommend both books.
