My daughter's favorite of the threeBy Momof4girlsAfter purchasing the Aneela book for my daughter, we bought another copy if that one and then this one and Marisa's too. (She loved them that much!). She likes the prints in this book the most. This book is a great crafty gift for a little girl. We got a fifth one for a friend's birthday. I can't say enough good things about them!

These collections of pop out boxes from three well-known fabric designers will have kids designing their very own boxes in no time. The boxes feature fun, current designs and are easy to assemble, providing hours of fun for kids and their friends. As educational as they are entertaining, each collection comes with instructions that walk kids through the pros' design processes, then prompt them to design their own patterns on the boxes featuring blank sides.

Play with your favorite fabric motif in paper form! Each book in the trio features 30 pop out boxes (plus cards, tags, and bookmarks) showcasing patterns from a popular fabric designer Marisa Anne, Aneela Hoey, or Erin McMorris. Each page also features black-and-white designs that you can color and add your own artistic flair. (Quilts More, Summer 2014) About the Author Erin McMorris studied graphic design at the University of Cincinnati and then textile design at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City. She has doodled, drawn and designed in London, San Francisco, and New York and currently rests her laptop in Portland Oregon. She likes lime green, pumpkin ice cream, tulips, her super silver bike, and people that make her laugh.
